

NUS Asian Institute of Digital Finance, Columbia University and ETH Zurich Establish FinTech Strategic Partnership

We are thrilled to announce a significant milestone in the realm of digital finance and technologies – the signing of a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between three prestigious institutions: Columbia University, ETH Zurich, and the National University of Singapore (NUS).

This historic collaboration signifies a commitment to advancing research, education, and service in the field of digital finance and technologies. The partnership brings together Columbia's Center for Digital Finance and Technologies, ETH Zurich's FinsureTech Hub, and NUS's Asian Institute of Digital Finance, renowned for their leadership in FinTech and digital technology.

Spanning across financial hubs in New York, Zurich, and Singapore, this strategic partnership will leverage resources from Asia, Europe, and North America. Through collaborative efforts in research, education, and industry engagement, we aim to drive innovation and progress in the exciting and rapidly evolving field of digital finance and technologies.

Areas of common interest where the institutions may collaborate on include blockchain technologies, digital insurance, digital finance and economics, and machine learning for risk management.

We are excited about the potential for groundbreaking advancements and look forward to the positive impact this collaboration will have on the global landscape of digital finance.

Based on: <https://godigital.engineering.columbia.edu/content/partnerships>